We're NOW HIRING for the following full-time positions in the DENVER area:

Customer Service Representative (Remote)

Communicate directly with customers by booking service, answering questions and troubleshooting issues. You'll be expected to ensure every potential customer is receiving the high level of service that we're known for. Hourly pay.

Product Specialist

Master and educate potential customers on A1 services and products through a variety of platforms, including home/trade shows, self-generated leads, cold-calling and networking. You will be expected to proactively and persistently connect and communicate with others, focus on relationships and analyze key performance indicators on a quarterly basis. Base pay plus bonus potential.

Installer*

Assist with and learn the installation of residential and custom garage doors. You will be expected to complete a training program with an experienced installer before beginning to lead your own installation efforts. Growth opportunities available within installer structure. Paid during training; base pay plus bonus potential.

Service Technician*

Serve on the front lines by interacting directly with customers, evaluating their issues, determining the best solutions, closing the deal and implementing a service strategy to efficiently and effectively solve their problems. You will be expected to influence, engage and positively impact individual and group customers. Growth opportunities available within technician structure. Paid during training; 100% performance pay. Customer service calls are provided.

* Begin with a one-day ride-along in your market to ensure our business is right for you. If you wish to move forward, you'll spend the first month with our experienced team members in your market. If you still want to continue, you will spend one month at our state-of-the-art Training Center in Phoenix. Training includes pay, airfare, lodging and a meal stipend while you learn the garage door business, technical skills, and the art of service.
